Headteacher's Newsletter – 12th February

Well we have all made it through the first half term of working in this new way. Well done everyone!

Although the country is still in lockdown, next week is half term, so no remote learning after today until Monday 22nd February. Children can continue to access the online resources such as Bug Club and RMEasimaths if they wish.

Monday 22nd February is also the day that we should find out more about schools reopening.

Google Classroom

Google Classroom will continue to be the way that children access any remote learning as we move forward.

We will also use it to provide the weekly class information for all children – whether attending school in person or accessing from home.

Parents of children learning from home already have this information and for those in school there is a paper copy of the login details being sent home today.
